COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY v JOSEPH CAMBRON

Whether indigent criminal defendant may obtain production of records via ex parte court orders when use of non-ex parte methods- criminal rules of criminal procedure, discovery rules, open records requests, and subpoena duces tecum - have not been shown to be inadequate? Whether Commonwealth is entitled to know nature of documents requested to comport with procedural due process requirements and avoid infringing on public's right to access courts? Whether criminal defendant obtaining ex parte order is equivalent to Commonwealth obtaining post-indictment search warrant? Whether requiring notice to Commonwealth violates accused's right against self-incrimination.
