Questions Presented:

Retrial of kidnapping penalty phase-Life, to be served concurrently with his 20 year sentence for manslaughter. Gruesome details of the condition of the victim's body were irrelevant and cumulative but did not sway the jury's sentencing decision. Victim impact of testimony relating to several "victims" was proper; additional improper testimony was not palpable error. Trial court did not improperly limit evidence of mitigation or err in permitting the prosecutor's use of guilt phase physical evidence during his closing argument.
